Find the right path through the maze of cubes, and solve the puzzles your way. Explore the entire game level, interact with the scenery, and perform every acitve, funny, and dangerous action you can think of. ECHOPLEX uses a minimalist concept throughout the entire game. Only the most necessary objects will be present at any given time. Everything else will be hidden. ECHOPLEX is designed to be a VERY minimalistic game, but, in order to make the game coherent, it takes advantage of the minimalism to make the game playable and funny! It's like a minimalist Portal meets QUBE, and as an additional feature, it even supports a controller. About You You are ECHOPLEX. You are a cube. You can move anywhere in the map. Your job is to move through the map, reach the end of each level, and solve the puzzles your way. Obviously, this means you can do as you wish with the world and your cube, and can attempt and solve any puzzle you come across. ECHOPLEX (Light) Available for purchase on Steam RELEASE: September 30, 2016Adsorption of asphaltenes on an oxidized zeolite-type material (Faujasite-FAU). The adsorption and desorption of the asphaltene fraction from a shale-oil on a modified zeolite-type material (FAU) has been studied. The adsorbent is an oxidized, acid-treated, pore-size-expanded zeolite-type material (FAU) with a specific surface area of 106 m²/g. The adsorption experiments were conducted by using a batch-percolation technique. Three conditions were examined: a) free FAU (no asphaltenes), b) asphaltenes, and c) a mixture of asphaltenes with FAU. The adsorption kinetics of the asphaltenes on FAU follow a pseudo-first-order function. The desorption of the asphaltenes is a much slower process than the adsorption of the asphaltenes, and the desorption kinetics follow a pseudo-second-order function. The adsorption of asphaltenes at low asphaltene concentration (4 mg/L) occurs by a heterogeneous diffusion mechanism whereas at high asphaltene concentrations (14

Parliament of Knives is the second chapter in a planned five-chapter novella series about political intrigue in the World of Darkness. Vampires of all kinds are subjected to the Masquerade, a public display of allegiance to their clan that is enforced with tribal prejudice and capital punishment. In the World of Darkness, a new vampire needs to navigate the myriad loyalties and secret agendas of Ottawa's court of immortals. After I played the demo and read the lore book, I decided to try out the fling in the back of the book with a Cleric. Here's my first character, a Cleric named Ciera. Age: 20 Category: Bringer / Flayer Clan: Nosferatu Lore:Ciera is a young teacher at a private school, fond of all things beautiful and mysterious. She has read the Vampire: The Masquerade series, and is fascinated by the stories of the ghouls. She was once victimized by a Follower of Set, and has been consumed with vengeance ever since. She is an initiated Nosferatu, but still relies on her ghoul for physical strength. Appearance:Ciera has bared her neck in a sash that is tied around the base of her skull. She has pink hair tied in pigtails. Her features are average, but her eyes are an unusual shade of blue. Intellect:Ciera has no active intellect on the character sheet, but she has trained extensively to hone her mental control and she functions as a brilliant teacher. She will grapple with the challenges set by the book, but she always pulls it off. Humor:Ciera does not have any Humor gear, but she has a sharp wit. She almost always has a smile on her face, but can also be very sarcastic. Charisma: Ciera's Charisma has not been determined yet. Her fling with the Anarchs could help her develop a new layer of charisma to rival her already impressive teaching. Ciera needs a ghoul to survive, but she is first and foremost a Nosferatu vampire. She has two options. First, she could try to make a ghoul of her own, or second, she could acquire a ghoul from an Anarch. I chose the second. Age: 50 Category: Ghoul Clan: Anarch Lore:Anarchs are ghouls who were not fully domesticated. They usually have a stronger physical presence c9d1549cdd

- A mixture of Rogue Legacy and Legend of Grimrock - Handcrafted, full of characters, items and dungeons - Incredibly fast and challenging action gameplay - Multiple gameplay modes - Hacked items - Loot items - Many enemies with random stats - Features both melee and ranged combat - Big emphasis on exploration - Lots of weapons and armor - Randomly generated Dungeon Generation and Environment
The gameplay of Rift Keeper is based on Rogue Legacy and Legend of Grimrock. The difference is the story. Instead of a cursed hero you have to save a town from darkness. In addition to standard dungeon crawling and exploration you can take part in quests, fight enemies and even use the Chaos Mechanism for more powerful results. Rift Keeper is a game about old school action and loot. If you are into exploring and fighting the things that lurk within dark dungeons the Rift Keeper is your game. You can jump and run in every direction and explore a huge variety of environments. There are over 30 handcrafted dungeons, varied enemies and loot items and a few new features like the Rift Mechanism. Every enemy has its own special skills, personality and background story. The ones in the mines sometimes have a mutation from the deadly dark dust that is spread all over the world. The bosses are more and more powerful with every level you complete. Even the things you find along the way are sometimes interesting, for example a dead man hidden in a garden or a messenger whom you can unlock. The enemies in this game are more about variety than they are about difficulty. Also, we only made the enemies tougher in a very selective and balanced way. Instead of having two additional levels of difficulty, it's about having two additional life, speed and weapon strength to survive the attacks. Instead of having a combat level system (i.e. what level you are when you start a fight) we decided to make them an additional source of challenge by adding random attacks and a few weaknesses. To make matters worse, there are time limits. Each level has a time limit. The first level you complete you will automatically enter the next level. This is because of the way the levels are generated. They are arranged in dungeons (which can be selected through a world map) that have the same layout for every level. Since they are the same layout they can also be generated in a reasonable amount of time. 1-4 levels = 2 hours 2-6 levels = 4 hours More than 6 levels = 6

Introduction Abstract This article suggests a system of global justice which involves redistribution of resources to the world's worst-off people. The principles to be adopted for such a system are drawn from work in economic theory, history and philosophical anthropology. Article X of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights establishes that States parties to the Covenant agree to adopt a system of global justice by which, at a minimum, all people are to have equal access to basic necessities of life. This article suggests a general criterion for determining who is entitled to enjoy material goods of human civilisation including liveable conditions (housing), environmental security, clean air, water, and the basic elements of life of modern agriculture. The criterion of entitlement is not designed to replace the ethical and humanistic criteria used in the present societies to determine and distribute the material goods of human civilisation as principles for institutional change. Entitlement to such goods can be regarded as an essential and autonomous value for human beings. Entitlement exists when a human being has some form of material security - the condition necessary for living a fully human life, including access to adequate nourishment and protection from external and internal harm. The state of having material security is not tied to identity, in the sense of having an official title or identity document. It is a standard of material security applicable to all human beings in the world with some exceptions, due to specific situations of conflict and war, state of emergency, closed institutions, etc. Entitlement to some goods of human civilisation requires duties for national and global states, as well as duties for individuals and organisations, including those living outside their own countries. As poverty, not being born, underlies two billion lives in the world today, it cannot be their fault. Entitlement to the essential goods of human life requires solutions to global poverty and energy insecurity, and therefore a solution to climate change. A system of global justice which recognises this entitlement and is partly based on this has been suggested and defended elsewhere (Pogge 2002, 2007). This article suggests a practical way of bringing this system of global justice to bear on the problem of climate change, in an opt-out way, by bringing about global change
